

ALL IN FOR EDUCATION

NEEDED FUNDING FOR VIRGINIA SCHOOLS

Education is the foundation for Virginia's children, but unfortunately, schools across the state – including right here in Norfolk – are lacking the necessary funding to improve their facilities and provide the ideal environment for learning. The City of Norfolk has already earmarked the proceeds of the nearly $10 million land sale for the casino to go directly toward the renovation of Booker T. Washington and Maury high schools.

The need for more public education funding is clear to everyone, so voting yes in November for the Norfolk Resort and Casino will be a vote in favor of a significant investment in Norfolk public schools and the entire Virginia public school system. The state's portion of new gaming tax revenue will help fund public school construction and maintenance. Based on anticipated gaming revenues, the resort and casino is expected to generate $50 million annually for public school construction and upgrades across the state. On top of that, the casino will also generate $22.5-$26 million in tax revenue that goes directly to Norfolk, which could also be used to directly address public education priorities locally. This funding can help Norfolk provide safe and healthy environments for students and teachers by addressing expensive education infrastructure problems. The Norfolk Resort and Casino is excited to be a partner in helping bring much-needed resources to Norfolk schools.
